BETTER TIMES COMING.

The State of Nevada is famous all over the world in extent of mineral resources. The developments heretofore made on the Comstock range has challenged the world; the yield is enormous. Thousands of prospectors have traveled all over this State and invariably find good prospects either of free milling or rebellious ore. For the last few years new districts have been organized, and it appears now that the quantity of rebellious ore-producing mines are worked and developed with considerable attention. Close to our immediate town is the Peavine District, unquestionably as rich a district of rebellious ore as can be found anywhere. All claims which have thus far been worked have demonstrated the fact that the Peavine hills contain untold fortunes of this class of ore, varying from $10 to $500 per ton. That very little attention has been paid by capitalists to this locality is mainly attributed to the fascinating desire of gambling in stocks, more than investing in legitimate mining, and our district has not furnished her quota of stocks for brokers to deal in, or as is generally supposed the bulls and bears have their hands full of Comstock to roap and lose their fortunes in a single day. But still some more thoughtful men have recently taken a different view of adding wealth to the Pacific coast, by studying how to successfully treat rebellious ores, and the cheapest, most feasible way of reducing rebellious ores to bullion, which by the way is a most landable undertaking, and it is hoped that they will succeed in their enterprise and make it profitable both to the inventor and the prospectors. We have watched as well as several of our citizens who are largely interested in the mines close by, the progress made by the different reduction works now in course of construction. Among the works most prominent before the public and which look most feasible to those who have examined them, is what is known as the Nevada Ore Extracting Company, by the inventor, N. Mariotte, on Brannan street, San Francisco, which is now experimenting with Consolidated Virginia ore. It is claimed that this invention can treat rebellious ore as well. We will continue to enumerate them all as we are informed by a reliable gentleman who lately visited most of the reduction works for his benefit in future. The Faimes works near Brooklyn in Alameda county, thus far very little heard of, seems to have its peculiar advantages of reducing refractory ores at a more nominal cost, and at a reasonable outlay of money can be built up anywhere, and the inventor of this process and mode of treating the ore seems to our informant very satisfactory. In this connection the Kohler Company, whose works are also near Brooklyn, claim alike that when their works are fully completed will be a great improvement in the strides made in reducing refractory ores. We could tell more about this furnace if it was completed, and for the good of the country we hope they will succeed soon and demonstrate all they claim for their works. Next we hear of the invention of Foyor lately started up at Grass Valley, we hear most landable and satisfactory accounts of this process, and so much so that one of our large owners in Peavine mines contemplates going to see it work, when we will be enabled to enlighten our readers, or those interested in Peavine.

vine mines in its fullest extent. Altogether we are most happy and feel encouraged that such enterprises are going on and attract the attention of scientific men that rebellious ores must be made to contribute to the wealth of the Pacific Coast. To us right here close to mountains of rebellious ore it cannot fail to be of immense value, that if success is destined for the above mentioned reduction works our population will be gainers to untold fortunes as we claim the Peavine District will get its just due and fully demonstrate that our theory of immense wealth can be unearthed in this district.

The Board charged with the Centennial presentation of the National Departments and the workings of Government under them, have finally concluded to construct a building in the Centennial Exposition Grounds for that purpose. The cost of the building is to be $75,000, and the design adopted is architecturally elegant and appropriate. Why should not the several States follow the General Government and construct around its building, as a focal centre, structures in which to display the natural products of their soil, mines, quarries, forests and waterways, as well as statistical and other proofs of State condition and advancement. It might easily be arranged so that several States, if not willing to undertake the construction of separate structures, could combine and exhibit under one roof. Think what a display the States of California, Oregon and Nevada could make together. Those of New England might do the same. The Cotton States could gather under one roof. Others, such as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, etc., could well afford separate structures. Of course what would be exhibited therein should and would be strictly confined to the natural products which illustrate the capacity of the State to support and industry; and to the processes and results that make manifest its administrative ability and progress.

THE RAILROAD FRAUD.—John Miller, whose speculations at the expense of the Central Pacific Railroad Company brought him into sudden notoriety, has lost none of the equanimity with which he bore the first shock of discovery and disgrace. He sits daily with an expert on each side of him, explaining in the bluntest and most indifferent manner how this figure has been altered and this entry falsified, taking excellent care that not a single iota of his villainy shall go undiscovered. Some days ago the experts placed the total railroad loss at $1,300,000. Of this sum $800,000 has been made up, but the probability is that a large portion of the balance has been laid snugly away from the moth and rust of investigation. Public opinion says that Mr. Miller will never be summoned to "answer to the laws of an offended country," because he was "on the inside" and that these talismanic words will be his protection.

The Board of Trustees of the Humboldt District Agricultural, Mining and Mechanical Society met at the office of the Secretary last Saturday, and decided to have the time for holding the next Annual Fair begin on the 20th and end on the 23d of October, to continue four days. The Committee on Race track was instructed to proceed at once to prepare and set in order a mile track.

GONE NO MORE.—We learn that Messrs. Stewart and Whitehill, the Centennial specimen collectors, left Elko Monday for Cornucopia and Bull Run, where they intend to spend a week or two in collecting specimens.

PAY day is approaching, and several hundred thousand dollars will be disbursed by the different companies during the present work.

Two brothers, one of whom fought on the Union side and the other on the rebel, met at Columbus, Pa., the other day, after a separation of fifteen years, but couldn't "shake" hands across the bloody chasm, and separated without speaking.
